LOCATION We live in the historic village of Bournville that is a quiet oasis in the big city of Birmingham. The village was built in the Victorian period by the chocolate manufacturer George Cadbury and we are a short walk from Cadbury World, the well-known tourist attraction for chocolate lovers. Bournville has a village green, a gourmet cafe and many of the original Victorian buildings including a Quaker meeting house. We have three large parks in walking distance and we are close to Bournville railway station so you can reach the centre of Birmingham by train in about 15 minutes. Birmingham is an impressive modern and very multicultural city situated in the Heart of England. It has a wide variety of shopping areas, theatres, art galleries, museums, concert halls, sporting venues, nightclubs and restaurants.
